● SC ALLOWS SETTLEMENT

SpiceJet & Credit Suisse end dispute

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, August 18

THE SUPREME COURT on Thursday allowed SpiceJet to withdraw its appeal against the winding up order passed by the Madras High Court as the carrier told the court that it has reached a settlement with Switzerland-based investment banking company Credit Suisse AG over a $24-million dispute.

The apex court also asked SpiceJet to move the HC for release of its $5-million bank guarantee, given as a collateral, as per the consent terms.

"There is a settlement which has taken place on May 23, 2022, as per the consent terms. In view of it, both parties are satisfied with the settlement and want to withdraw the special leave petition filed by the petitioner (SpiceJet). Accordingly, the application is allowed," the bench headed by the Chief Justice NV Ramana said in its order and directed the parties to abide by the consent terms.

The SC had earlier asked SpiceJet to resolve its dispute with Credit Suisse AG and had stayed the HC's order that allowed a winding up of the low-cost airline.

SpiceJet had challenged the HC order of January 11, allowing the winding-up petition filed by Credit Suisse against the company for default of about $24 million. The HC had also directed the official liquidator to take over the assets of SpiceJet.

The Swiss company had filed a winding-up case against the airline for failing to honour some invoices raised for over $24 million towards payment of maintenance, repairing, and overhauling of the aircraft engines and components in 2013. However, the apex court, on SpiceJet's appeal, had put the HC order on hold and asked the airline to settle the case with Credit Suisse.

The airline had in November 2011 entered into a 10-year contract for servicing of aircraft with Swiss engine maintenance services firm SRT Technics, which, in turn, sold its right to receive payments based on the contract to Credit Suisse in September 2012.

How 8vdX helps early-stage founders raise venture debt

SALMAN SH
Bengaluru, August 18

AT A TIME when tech startups are struggling to raise equity funding, alternative sources of capital such as venture debt, convertible notes and financing from banks have become a strategy to extend runways and fund crucial opex requirements. However, the funding slowdown is expected to hit early-stage founders the most since getting to the Series A stage is considered crucial for survival. Many founders choose to raise pre-Series A or bridge rounds as a way to shore up investor interest in their business before closing in on a larger multi-million Series A round.

Mumbai-based venture debt marketplace 8vdX is solving this problem by offering early-stage startups with bridge financing to their Series A or B rounds by providing venture debt to meet their goals and extend their runway. Additionally, startup founders can easily and conveniently obtain venture loans through an intuitive interface and choose to repay in their local currency, including the British pound, Singapore dollars and Australian dollars.

The firm provides flexible, founder-friendly loans. If the startups are unable to pay back, 8vdX has the option of turning the debt into equity or continuing to be a lender, therefore it does not seek personal guarantees from the founders or force startups to file for bankruptcy.

Startups can choose to pay interest in the form of equity or a combination of equity and cash. There are no cash flow sweeps from the startup's bank account, and the 8vdX loan has no impact on the founders' personal credit history. 8vdX chooses startups for underwriting and funding approval using data-driven underwriting techniques driven by their KPIs and growth metrics.

Speaking to FE, 8vdX's co-founder Ravi Chachra said only 20% of the startups that secure seed funding go on to raise a successful Series A round at a valuation that both founders and investors are comfortable with. However, providing venture debt to companies with minimal revenue is fraught with risks since underwriting such loans could be challenging. 8vdX's is working around this problem by instead partnering with large accelerators such as Y Combinator in the US and funding their portfolios instead.

When 8vdX was first set up in late 2021, it first gave out loans of $150,000 to Y Combinator-admitted start-ups, and the loans were to be returned once the companies graduate or go on to raise institutional funding.

8vdX was also able to garner individual investor interest from India and around the globe, and therefore closed in on a marketplace model connecting investors directly with founders looking for bridge funding.

"If a founder gets admitted into Y Combinator, that means they are most probably going to raise VC funding after graduation. And the average Y Combinator company raises between $1-1.5 million in early-stage funding and almost one-third of them go on to raise Series A and above. We found a way to underwrite early-stage startups by underwriting the entire Y Combinator programme rather than the individual startups," Chachra added.

8vdX initially started off with more than 35 investors who invested in the first batch of Y Combinator startups in 2021. The firm is currently in talks with multiple accelerators and VC funds in India and abroad to expand its footprint. "Currently, we have about 112 investors on the platform, and it is growing a little bit every day. We are planning to grow our AUM to $200 million and we'll be investing that corpus across 100 companies in the next 24 months," Chachra said.

8vdX marketplace currently has an AUM of $10 million and has funded more than 20 early-stage startups since inception.

RCom seeks SC approval to use ₹104 cr to be refunded by DoT

INDU BHAN
New Delhi, August 18

RELIANCE COMMUNICATION (RCom) and Reliance Telecom on Thursday moved the Supreme Court seeking permission to use ₹104.34 crore, lying unutilised in a separate account, to meet their day-to-day expenses.

A Bench led by Justice UU Lalit sought a response from the department of telecommunications (DoT) on a fresh application by the bankrupt companies, which are in the final stages of insolvency proceedings. The application sought a direction to the department to file its application with the National Company Law Tribunal (NCLT) so that money can be released to them.

The Supreme Court earlier this year, dismissing an appeal from the Centre, had asked DoT to refund over ₹104 crore to the two ailing companies, which were encashed towards their deferred spectrum dues. The government had encashed bank guarantees furnished by the companies of ₹908.91 crore against the actual dues of ₹774.25 crore for deferred spectrum instalments for 2018.

Despite the SC asking the DoT to seek the NCLT's decision for adjustment of ₹104.34 crore, the department sought to set off the excess amount towards the adjusted gross revenue (AGR) dues, the companies said in their fresh plea.

Stating that DoT has deliberately chosen not to file any application before the NCLT, they also alleged that the government's "inaction is hampering the CIRP and depriving" them of an opportunity to ease their financial burden.

The DoT cannot offset the amount towards AGR or any other dues on its own, and it needs to be settled only as per the provisions of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, senior counsel Arvind Datar, appearing for the firms, said.

RCL and predecessor Sistema Shyam Tele Services had emerged successful in 2015 and 2013 spectrum auctions, respectively. After the merger of Sistema with RCL, its assets and liabilities, including the spectrum licence, had devolved on the latter. While the government approved the transfer in October 2017, RCL and RTL had bagged further spectrum in 2015 auctions. However, RCL failed to pay the third instalment of deferred spectrum charges of ₹281.45 crore in terms of NIA 2013. This led to the encashment of bank guarantees to the extent of ₹281.45 crore and another ₹492.79 crore for deferred spectrum liability under the NIA 2013.

On both firms failing to pay their dues, the Centre encashed bank guarantees of ₹908.91 crore against the actual dues of ₹774.25 crore.

Blackstone completes ₹4,044-cr Sona stake sale; GIC & SBI MF biggest buyers

RAJESH KURUP
Mumbai, August 18

ACLUTCH OF institutional investors, including Singapore's sovereign wealth fund GIC, acquired a 13.6% stake held by US private equity major Blackstone in Sona BLW Precision Forgings for about ₹4,044 crore.

The buyers acquired the stake through a block deal on Thursday for ₹509 a share, which was at a 5% discount to Wednesday's closing price. Following the partial stake sale, the share prices in the automotive component manufacturer fell 6% on Thursday, and closed 4.03% lower at ₹517.40.

While GIC and State Bank of India Mutual Fund were the biggest buyers, Canadian insurance firm Manulife Financial Corporation also bought shares through a block deal on Thursday. Nippon India Mutual Fund, Kotak Mutual Fund and HDFC Mutual Fund were among others who bought the stake, sources close to the developments said.

All the buyers were institutional shareholders, with a reputation of staying invested in companies. Blackstone was the lone seller as the promoters were not part of the block deal.

Following the deal, Blackstone would continue to hold a 20.5% stake in the firm. Prior to the stake sale, the US private equity firm held a 34.1% stake in Sona BLW. For Blackstone, the stake sale was done at Internal Rate of Return of 15 times, sources added.

The PE firm had sold some stake at the time of Sona BLW's (also known as Sona Comstar) initial public offering in June 2021, when the firm raised about ₹5,550 crore. The IPO was a mix of fresh issue of shares and an offer for sale by existing shareholders. Nomura Holdings Indian arm was the sole agent to the deal.
