FROM SHADOWS TO SPOTLIGHT | MP's allrounder earns maiden India call-up at an age of 33

SARANSH'S SPIN OF DESTINY

Milind R Lashkari
INDORE

The 33-year-old Madhya Pradesh allrounder, who has spent more than a decade grinding through domestic cricket, has received his maiden India Test call-up for the two-match series in Sri Lanka, completing one of Indian cricket's most inspiring late-blooming journeys.

Born in Indore on March 31, 1993, the son of former first-class cricketer Subodh Jain, right-arm off-break bowler and left-handed batter Saransh has quietly built a reputation as one of the country's most dependable red-ball allrounders. His selection may have been aided by circumstances, but it was built on years of relentless performances.

The turning point came in the 2021-22 Ranji Trophy knockouts when he claimed 13 wickets and struck a crucial half-century to help Madhya Pradesh lift their maiden Ranji Trophy title.

Since then, there has been no looking back.

His latest Ranji Trophy campaign was his finest yet, yielding 518 runs at 57.55 and 30 wickets at 20.43, underlining his value as a genuine all-rounder. Before that, he dominated the Duleep Trophy, scoring two half-centuries and taking 16 wickets in just two matches to finish as the Player of the Series.

Saransh further strengthened his case during the recent India A tour of Sri Lanka, producing an unbeaten 70 and a match haul of six wickets in the second game after a quiet start to the series.

His selection has also been influenced by circumstances. Washington Sundar's hamstring injury ruled him out of the opening Test, while Sri Lanka's likely left-handed batting line-up prompted selectors to look for an off spinner. Saransh, who bowls offspin and bats left-handed, emerged as the ideal option.

A self-confessed admirer of Ravichandran Ashwin, Saransh once said he wanted to emulate the veteran's dedication to the game. That dream now moves a step closer to reality.

If India opt for three spinners in Sri Lanka, Ravindra Jadeja and Kuldeep Yadav are expected to start, leaving Saransh and Manav Suthar competing for the final place. While Suthar impressed on debut against Afghanistan, team balance and Sri Lanka's left-handed batters could tilt the scales in Saransh's favour.

Should he make the playing XI, Saransh will script another remarkable chapter. He would become India's first Test debutant aged 33 or older since Robin Singh in 1998, proving that perseverance can still earn its reward in modern cricket.

ICSI's New CSEET: Shaping Nextgen Boardroom Professionals

India's corporate ecosystem is entering a new era where governance, transparency, ethical leadership, and accountability are becoming prerequisites for sustainable growth. Investors, regulators, boards, and stakeholders today expect organizations to demonstrate responsible governance.

This shift in the business environment has significantly increased the demand for qualified governance professionals, elevating the role of Company Secretaries (CS), as a trusted Board Advisor enabling long-term value creation.

With the growing significance of the profession, the Institute of Company Secretaries of India (ICSI) has undertaken a landmark reform for its Company Secretary Executive Entrance Test (CSEET). The revamped examination framework is designed to nurture future-ready governance professionals equipped with the knowledge, analytical capability, communication skills, and ethical foundation required to thrive in an increasingly complex corporate environment.

Since its introduction, CSEET has emerged as the gateway to one of India's most respected professional qualifications. Its growing popularity over the years reflects an increasing student awareness of the diverse career opportunities available to Company Secretaries. Today, their expertise is sought across banking, financial services, manufacturing, technology, capital markets, consulting firms, multinational corporations, and high-growth startups, making them indispensable to modern businesses.

Recognizing the changing industry expectations, the ICSI introduced significant enhancements to the CSEET. From June this year, CSEET has transitioned to a fully offline, multi-day format with descriptive assessments. This shift marks a decisive move away from evaluating only objective knowledge towards assessing conceptual understanding, analytical thinking, articulation, practical application, and professional communication of aspiring Company Secretaries.

The new examination structure seeks to develop the core competencies of aspirants by encouraging descriptive responses. The examination will strengthen critical thinking, structured expression, problem-solving ability, and independent reasoning from the very beginning of the academic journey.

CS Pawan G. Chandak
President, The ICSI

Complementing the revised examination, the ICSI also added a comprehensive academic support system. From centralized online classes to standardized study material, from expert faculty guidance to structured learning resources, every initiative ensures that aspirants, irrespective of their location or educational background, receive equal access to quality education. This has created a level playing field, particularly benefiting students from non-metro cities and diverse academic streams.

Further strengthening this ecosystem is the mandatory Student Induction Programme, which familiarizes students with the profession, the curriculum, professional ethics, and expectations from a Company Secretary. The ICSI believes that an early engagement with the profession enhances preparedness, builds confidence, improves learning outcomes, and creates a stronger foundation for future success.

The revamped CSEET is aligned with the changing expectations of corporate India, as today's governance professionals are expected to possess an interdisciplinary understanding that extends beyond company law. They have to demonstrate proficiency in financial statement analysis, economics, strategic management, communication, regulatory compliance, and stakeholder engagement while remaining adaptable to rapidly evolving legal and technological developments.

Emerging areas such as Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG), sustainability reporting, artificial intelligence governance, cybersecurity, data privacy, enterprise risk management, and board effectiveness are increasingly shaping boardroom discussions. The modern Company Secretary must therefore combine technical expertise with digital literacy, analytical capability, leadership skills, and strategic insight to support organizational decision-making.

An equally significant advantage of the offline descriptive examination is, it instils greater academic discipline and examination integrity among students. It also ensures a more robust and credible evaluation process, reducing over-reliance on objective testing and better reflecting students' true academic preparedness.

As governance is increasingly becoming imperative for business success, the need for professionals capable of independent judgment, effective communication, and ethical leadership continues to grow.

Aligned with the mission of building globally competitive governance professionals capable of contributing meaningfully to India's economic growth, the ICSI is strengthening the quality of entry into the Company Secretary profession.

Sharing his vision on the transformation, CS Pawan G. Chandak, President, The ICSI said, "The Company Secretary of today is a strategic governance leader who contributes significantly to sustainable value creation and responsible corporate leadership. The revamped CSEET reflects ICSI's commitment to shaping the next generation of governance professionals who will strengthen India's corporate ecosystem and inspire confidence among boards, investors, regulators, and society."

As businesses navigate increasing complex regulatory and stakeholder expectations, governance professionals will play an even more decisive role in shaping robust, resilient and sustainable organizations. The revamped CSEET is therefore the beginning of a transformational journey that prepares aspiring Company Secretaries to lead with integrity, competence and innovation.

BCCI rings in coaching change

END OF AN INNINGS | No resignations, only expired contracts, says BCCI as new support staff set to be named

IANS

NEW DELHI

The Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) has ended speculation surrounding the future of assistant coach Ryan ten Doeschate and fielding coach T. Dilip, clarifying that both have exited the Indian men's team support staff after their contracts expired and were not renewed.

BCCI secretary Devajit Saikia said the board would announce their replacements within the next couple of days.

"There was a lot of speculation about resignations, but that is not the case. Their contract periods ended and were not extended. We are now in the process of appointing new people, and the replacements will be announced in a day or two," Saikia told IANS.

According to the BCCI, Dilip had already been serving on a one-year extension after his original contract expired last year, while ten Doeschate's tenure officially ended on June 10. Both, however, continued with the Indian team until the completion of the white-ball tour of England on July 19.

Ten Doeschate, one of head coach Gautam Gambhir's closest aides, joined the Indian setup after Gambhir replaced Rahul Dravid following India's victorious 2024 ICC Men's T20 World Cup campaign.

The former Netherlands all-rounder played a key role across batting and fielding departments during a successful white-ball phase in which India won the 2025 Asia Cup and retained the 2026 ICC Men's T20 World Cup title.

The Test team's fortunes, however, were mixed during his tenure. India surrendered the Border-Gavaskar Trophy in Australia before suffering successive home series defeats, including a 3-0 loss to New Zealand and a 2-0 defeat to South Africa.

The BCCI's decision marks the first major reshuffle in the national team's support staff since Gambhir took charge, with fresh appointments expected ahead of India's next international assignment.

World Cup red card was wrong, rules panel admits after Embolo flashpoint

AP

GENEVA

Football's rule-makers have acknowledged that Switzerland forward Breel Embolo should not have been sent off during the FIFA World Cup quarterfinal against Argentina, after clarifying that the Video Assistant Referee (VAR) protocol was applied incorrectly.

The decision, which proved pivotal in Argentina's 3-1 extra-time victory, has reignited debate over the limits of VAR and prompted the International Football Association Board (IFAB) to review its procedures.

The controversy unfolded in the 72nd minute, moments after Switzerland levelled the score at 1-1.

Initially, Argentina midfielder Leandro Paredes was shown a yellow card for fouling Embolo.

However, after a VAR review, officials ruled that no foul had occurred and instead booked Embolo for simulation, resulting in his second yellow card and dismissal.

IFAB has now clarified that VAR should not have been used in that manner under the current Laws of the Game.

WHY WAS IT WRONG?

According to IFAB, the "mistaken identity" provision in VAR laws is designed only to identify the correct player who committed an offence.

It cannot be used to overturn the offence itself or change a foul into a booking for simulation.

That means Embolo's second yellow card should never have resulted from the review, prompting IFAB to admit the referee's decision was incorrect.

Finger flick sparks global cricket storm as 'Ghost Nick' row goes viral

LONDON

An amateur cricket match in England has become the centre of a global social media storm after a viral video appeared to show a fielder clicking his fingers to imitate the sound of a bat edging the ball, leading to a batter being given out. The controversial clip has racked up millions of views on X, with cricket fans, former players and commentators questioning whether one of the sport's most unusual acts of alleged cheating was caught on camera.

The video, reportedly from a North Yorkshire and South Durham Cricket League match involving Saltburn Cricket Club, appears to show a close-in fielder creating an artificial "nick" sound just before a catch is completed.

If an umpire mistakes the finger snap for the sound of the ball touching the bat, the batter can be wrongly dismissed. The clip's uploader labelled it: "About the worst case of cheating I've ever seen in cricket."

Piers Morgan weighs in Television presenter Piers Morgan joined the online debate, branding the player involved the:

"Biggest cheat in cricket history."

He also questioned how many batters may have been dismissed through similar tactics.

League orders investigation

The North Yorkshire and South Durham Cricket League confirmed it has received a formal complaint over Saturday's match and has launched a full investigation.

The league has not officially identified the team involved or commented further while the inquiry is ongoing.
